1 The sun blazes down your face. The water drips down your face. You push your way to the sleek brown animal. You laugh and wish that you were on in this hot weather too.

2 The animal's smooth and shiny fur is perfect for slicing through the water. Kicking off with its webbed feet, it quickly reaches shore and scurries up the steep little hill to join its family. "What are these funny animals?" you wonder. Then you notice the sign, "River Otters." Long whiskers that look like mustaches make the river otters look like some grownups you know, but river otters do not act like grownups! The otters play and wrestle and take turns on the water slide. One by one they splash into the cool water and scramble out for another turn.

3 You could watch them play forever, but you know there are lots of other creatures to see. You slip out of the crowd, and across from the river otter habitat. You see another sign, "Sea Otters." More otters! You have to see them!

Passage 1

All in a Day's Work
A Folktale from Norway
retold by Ellen Wettersten

1 Long ago a woman lived with her husband on a farm. They grew wheat.

2 The husband was always grumpy. He complained every day. He said to his wife, "My life is harder than yours. Every morning, I go out in the hot sun. I work in the fields all day. You stay inside where it's cool, and you get to do what you like."

3 The wife knew her husband was stubborn. She knew that it would do no good to argue with him.

4 The wife said, "I know you work hard in the fields. But I work just as hard in the house. Tomorrow I will go out in the fields and do your work. You stay in the house and do my work. Then we'll know who works harder."

5 "Fine," said her husband. He smiled. "You will learn about hard work."
